SHOT IN THE RIGHT TEMPLE

Henry McMullen Meets With an accident at The Hands of Harry Hassinger.

THE FIRING PURELY ACCIDENTAL

While Out Hunting Wild Ducks Harry Hassinger Sends a Ball Crashing Into Henry McMullen's Head.

While out shooting wild ducks this morning Harry Hassinger, a 19-year-old boy, accidently shot Henry McMullen in the right temple. McMullen now lies in a precarious condition at his home near McCoy's works, this side of Milesburg.

It seems that young Hassinger was out hunting for some wild ducks which were flying up and down the creek near the chain works. He was on the side of the creek along the pike leading to Milesburg and was shooting across the creek towards the wire mill. Henry McMullen was digging some post holes preparatory to making a fence around his home, which stands a short distance up on the hill about midway between the chain works and the wire mill. He heard Hassinger shooting across the creek from him but paid little attention to him. He didn't consider himself in any danger as the creek was fully twenty feet below where he was working, and he had no idea that any of the bullets could carry to where he was standing. Another man was standing along side of him and he hearing a bullet crash up against the fence concluded to get behind the house. Hardly had he done so when he heard another shot fired and looking around he saw McMullen throw his right hand to his forehead and stagger to one side in a dazed way. He saw at a glance that McMullen had been hit by a bullet and hurried at once to his side. The blood was flowing from the wound in a regular stream, and realizing the danger he led McMullen into the house as quickly as possible. A couch was hurriedly prepared and the wounded man placed upon it, and then everything possible was done to stop the flow of blood. A physician was summoned and was soon on the ground. An examination was made and it was found that the bullet—a 32 calibre—had entered his forehead in the right temple, directly over the right eye, and had flattened up against the skull and was imbedded about an inch and a half in the side of his head. It was probed for and extracted without much difficulty. McMullen is resting as well as could be expected under the circumstances. He has been sick for about three weeks and naturally his weak condition is very much against him. It is not thought, however, that the wound will prove fatal.

A representative of the DAILY NEWS was on the scene shortly after the shooting occurred and the above information was secured from Mr. McMullen himself. McMullen is a man about 56 yerrs of age and has a family.

A report was current on the streets this afternoon that the shooting was done on purpose and that Hassinger had made threats against McMullen's life. The report is false in every way, as there is not a word of truth in it. The shooting took place about 9.20 a. m., and the wound was the result of a glance shot, as the bullet struck the mud and then glanced up and accidentally struck McMullen on the head

Avenged Her Honor.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., April 20.—Mrs. Catherine Anitz, aged 22 years, one of the prettiest Italian women in the Lehigh coal regions, shot and killed Angelo Dangolo at Lattimer this morning. It appears that Dangola entered the Anitz home last night at midnight and climbed into the bed in which the women and her husband were sleeping. When they were aroused Dangofled, At 6 o'clock this morning the women met Dangolo on the street, and without a moment's warning fired five shots into his body, and the man fell dead instantly. Mrs. Anitz was arrestd a short time later and taken before Squire Martin of Lattimer, who committed her without bail for a further hearing.

The Lost Children Found.

New Castle, Pa., April 20.—Kittie Clark and Kittie Whaley, the two little girls who were lost in the woods near Coaltown Saturday afternoon, were found yesterday near Neshannock creek. They were almost dead from fatigue, having spent the entire night in an open field. The children told how they had wandered through the night and had slept with their heads on a stone.

A FOUR YEAR OLD CHILD

Burned to Death Tuesday Morning At Renova.

A heartrending burning accident occurred at Renova Tuesday morning about 11 o'clock by which T. B. Keaven, formerly of this city lost his 4-year-old son Harold. Mrs. Keaven left the child sleeping in bed while she ran to a near by store on an errand. During her absence the little fellow awoke, climbed out of bed, came down stairs and began playing with the fire in the stove. His night robe caught fire, burning the child so badly that he lingered in excrutiating agony for a few hours when he expired. The sad affair depressed the entire community.—Lock Haven Democrat.

Lost—A Point.

Historic are the instances of points missed in the retelling of a good story. Who has not heard of Charles Lamb's "badly tired" wheel twisted into "badly wearied," with a consequent loss of the point? And here is one that was overheard at one of the little restaurants.

One of the habitues of the place had just returned with a coat of tan that spoke even louder for a glorious vacation than any words.

"I've been roaming aronnd through the upper parts of the state," he said, "and many quaint and curious things have I seen. One of them was an inn, old as the hills, I guess. It's name, too, was particularly appropriate for a hotel, 'Dew Drop Inn.'"

His hearers commented on the aptness, and later in the evening, when a stranger joined the party, one of the number tried to tell about this hotel and could not understand why the late comer did not see the aptness when he told that on a signboard were the words, "Please Walk In."—New York Herald.

An Unwilling Bride.

It is not often that a groom meets a weeping bride when he goes to her home to have the nuptial knot tied, but that is the experience that W. L. Shannon, of Butler, met with when he went to Oriole, Lycoming county, recently to marry Sarah Voneida, a pretty daughter of a prosperous Nippenose valley farmer. Shannon and his sweetheart had never seen each other, their courtship and proposal for marriage having baen conducted by means of correspondence. When Shannon reached the girl's home she broke down, began crying and pleaded that she did not want to marry. She finally consented to have the ceremony performed, but, with the understanding that she would be allowed to remain at home for at least three months.

COUNCIL IN SESSION

Regular Meeting of Borough Fathers on Monday Evening.

LITTLE BUSINESS TRANSACTED

Lots of Minor Affairs Passed On—The Subject of Street Repairs The Most Important One Taken Up—Few Bills To Approve.

Council commenced in regular session on Monday evening with President Brockerhoff and members Lowery, Shaeffer, Brackbill, Valentine, Williams and Gerberich in attendance. The session lasted an hour and an half during which time of business was transacted.

Clerk Isaac Mitchell read the minutes of the previous meeting which were approved and adopted as read. Mr. John P. Harris appeared and presented a petition asking that several different crossings and pavements be repaired. Mr. Edward Woods appeared before the council and presented a largely signed petition asking for a crossing on Blanchard and Bishop Streets near the Brick School House.

The street committee reported putting a new sewer on South Bishop street and also that the work on East Logan street was progressing finely. They stated that Allegheny and High streets have been cleaned up. The committee stated that a complaint had been made of the pavement in the rear of Ellis Orvis' lot on Lamb street.

The Water committee reported that the water pipe was being laid on East Logan street and recommended that a two-inch pipe be laid instead of a one inch. Bids have been asked for furnishing the six-inch pipe but as yet they have not all been handed in. The committee said that they had neglected to ask that a water assesor be appointed at the previous meeting and that they had since taken the liberty of appointing Mr. H. B. Pontius to act in that capacity and that they asked the council to ratify their action. Repairs have been made to the fountain on the Diamond especially in improving the drainage. In regard to the water motors, the committee stated that Mr. Meek had agreed to sign the contract but that Mr. W. S. Zeller still refused. They further reported that C. R. Kurtz desired to know at what price he could keep his water motor to run the job press only.

The fire and police committee reported that the ball nozzles ordered, had arrived and a partial test had been made which was very satisfactory. A more complete test is to be however made. They stated that Burgess Gray has yet failed to approve the vagrancy ordinance but expected to do in so the near future.

The subject of crossings was taken up and thoroughly discussed. The one asked for from J. P. Harris to that of J. H. Lingle on Linn street was referred to the street committee to investigate and report at the next meeting, also the one at the Armory. The alley crossing between the Shugart and Hewe's residences was referred to the street committee with power to act.

It was decided to notify Mr. Ellis Orvis to repair the pavement on Lamb street at once.

The matter of the water pipe on East Logan street was referred to the water committee. The action of the water committee in employing Mr. Pontius to make the assessment was approved. It was decided to set a time for appeals to be heard as regards water assessments.

The street committee mentioned the fact that there was a deep rut in Front of Blair's Jewelry store and that the Gas Company had so far failed to properly repair it. It was decided to notify the Gas Company to make repairs at once or Council would

The matter of a crossing on Blanchard Street was referred to the street committee.

After approving the following bills council adjourned.

Read This; Think about It.

Greensburg, Pa.—Those who were fortunate enough to attend any of the performances of "The Drummer Boy of Shiloh" last week, under the auspices of Co. I, 10th Reg't. N.G.P., were surprised at the wonderfully mounted and excellently performed drama. Fred B. Wigle, the proprietor and manager of the play, is certainly a wonder. In a very few days he selecting a cast and thoroughly training it in every detail, making every part perfect. The cast was far superior to many professional combinations which have appeared here. The tableaux were without doubt the finest ever presented to a Greensburg audience, and our people are more than satisfied with the performance of "The Drummer Boy of Shiloh."—Pennsylvania Argus, April 19, 1893. Look for it on April 29-30 and May 1st, at Garman's Opera House.

The Blairsville Presbytery.

Greensburg, Pa., April 22.—At the spring meeting of the Blairsville presbytery at Derry, Bev. Henry Bain of Polk Run was elected moderator and H. F. Stark of this place clerk. The relation existing between Rev. E. M. Bowman and the First Presbyterian church at Ebensburg was dissolved. Rev. Bowman has accepted a call from the Second Presbyterian church of Braddock, from which he is to receive $1,200 annually. Rev. Miron, missionary among the French people within the bounds of the presbytery, reported that he was making good progress. It was shown that there was great need of work in that field. Harry McCutcheon, a student at the Western Theological seminary preached a trial sermon.

SPANGLER AND CORNEELY

They Run The Democratic County Convention Saturday.

THEY INSTRUCT FOR PATTISON

The Session a Very Tame One And Was Controlled Almost Entirely by James Corneely The South Ward Leader

The Democrats of Centre county held a special convention at the Court House today for the purpose of electing five delegates to the State convention, which meets at Allentown on Wednesday, the 29th of April.

The convention was probably the tamest ever held in Centre county and was a mere matter of form in doing the little business that was absolutely necessary. It was a Spangler and Corneely day, as those two politicians were practically in charge of everything.

It was just 11 o'clock when County Chairman N. B. Spangler called the convention to order. The first business taken up was the reading of the call of the convention by H. J. Jackson.

The next business up for transaction was the selection of a permanent chairman. Dr. F. K. White of Philipsburg presented the name of Hugh S. Taylor and it was seconded by James Corneely. Mr. Taylor was chosen by acclamation, and taking the chair thanked the convention for the honor of presiding, pledged faithful duty, and ended his speech with a brilliantly painted word picture of prosperity and success which would come under the democratic administration in the sweet bye and bye. Mr. Taylor's address was punctuated all through by faint applause—faint because there were so few in attendance that any other kind of applause was an impossibility.

The secretaries of last year's convention were rechosen and took their respective places. Roll Clerk Cronister then read the apportionment of delegates, which numbered 79. Upon motion of James Corneely the roll call was dispensed with as was also the substitution of delegates. W. C. Heinle, H. A. Moore, R. D. Foreman and W. K. Alexander were chosen as a committee on resolutions. Upon motion of Harvey Herring of Gregg township, seconded by James Corneely, the following delegates to the State Convention were elected: J. H. Eskridge, Philipsburg; B. Weber, Howard; W. B. Mingle, Centre Hall; G. W. Jackson, Bellefonte, and W. H. Denlinger, Philipsburg. They were afterwards elected by acclamation.

Upon motion of James Corneely, Col. J. L. Spangler made a brief address which was in keeping with the rest of the work of the convention. The Colonel worked a great blind on the people by contrasting Gov. Pattison and Senator Quay, praising the former to the skies and throwing mud in the face of the latter. Whether he was instructed to do so from "headquarters" is, of course, not known, only it caused a little ripple of excitement owing to several little instances that have happened recently.

D. F. Fortney also made a ten-word address, after which W. C. Heinle presented the resolutions made up (?) by the committee. The delegates were instructed to support A. S. Garman for national delegate to Chicago. After accepting the following resolutions, the convention adjourned:

The Democracy of Centre County in convention assembled resolves:

1. That we endorse the wise and patriotic administration of Grover Cleveland. We commend his efforts to sustain the honor and credit of the nation in his purpose to maintain the gold standard as the only safe basis upon which the financial policy of this government can rest so as to maintain our high standing among the nations of the earth, restore permanent confidence to the business of the country, and prosperity and happiness to the people. We rejoice in his broad and heroic enunciation of the Monroe doctrine and his determination to teach the Monachical governments of the earth that as a people, we cannot and will not tolerate the extensions of their institutions, or the acquisition by them of any additional territory on this continent. We commend his administration in enforcing a strong foreign policy and at the same time preserving the peaceful relations that have so long existed between our government and every other government in the world.

1. That believeing in the availability and pre-eminent fitness, mindful of the great victories the Democracy of Pennsylvania has won under his leadership, proud of the executive ability manifested while chief magistrate of this great commonwealth, having faith in his honesty, integrity, and courage as a man, pure in private life, clean in his public career, knowing that his views on the financial and tariff questions are sound and in accord with those of the present Democratic administration, always with the people as against rings, monopolies and irresponsible bosses, believeing that his nomination would secure for the Democratic party the electoral vote of Pennsylvania, we declare the Honorable Robt. E. Pattison as our choice for President of the United States, and instruct the delegates this day elected to the State Convention to do whatever they can to secure for him the support of the Pennsylvania delegation at the coming Democratic National Convention.

A RIOT IN A CHURCH

An Expelled Member Took Forcible Possession of the Pulpit and Denounced Members.

Pleasantville, O., April 21.—One of the most disgraceful affairs ever occurring in this county took place Sunday at the Pleasant Run Baptist church. Immediately after the sermon Joseph Holliday, who had recently been excluded from the church sprang to his feet and passed up the aisle of the church to the pulpit. Entering the pulpit, he picked up a chair, and addressing the pastor, Elder T. C. Williams said: "now you get out of here; I'll preach now." Desiring to humor him, the pastor descended, when Holliday began abusing various members of the congregation, calling them "wolves," "liars," ect.

Several of the male members of the congregation started to the pulpit, when Holliday again picked up his chair and threatened to strike the first man who touched him. Unawed by this threat, Elijah Friend reached for him, when Holliday struck at Friend with the chair. By this time the greatest excitement prevailed and several women where frightened almost into hysterics. Holliday was disarmed of his chair before any more damage resulted and ejected from the church. A warrant for his arrest was sworn out and Sheriff Messerly placed him in the county jail at Lancaster that evening. It is thought by some that Holliday is crazy, while others contend it is a mere "cussedness." Holliday was arrested and fined some time ago for disturbing a meeting at the same place.

Forgot to Give Instructions.

Clearfield, Pa., April 21—The democrats, in their county convention held here to-day, selected Matt Savage as national delegates wit power to choose his own conferees and elected the following state delegates: Frank Gross, J. W. Spangler, G. R. Campbell, J. I. Brockbank, Fred Sackel and Horace B. Tompkins. They were instructed for Pattison for president. The motion to adopt the unit rule was killed by a vote of 53 to 40, but in the confusion the delegates were not instructed. Hon. James Kerr was defeated for state delegate and then withdrew from the nomination for national delegates. This place Matt Savage at the helm of the democratics ship in Clearfield county.

He was Electrocuted.

Philadelphia, April 21.—Linford L. Biles, a well known citizen, who was foreman of the jury which convicted H. H. Holmes of murder, in the first degree, was electrocuted at an early hour this morning on the roof of his home, No. 131 Tasker St. while in the act of handling a telephone wire which threatened to set his house on fire, and his son, George C. Biles, who went to his father's rescue, was so badly shocked by the current that passed through his dead father's body that he is now in a critical condition in the St. Agnes hospital.

Those Monotonous Sonnets.

She (gushingly to the literary lion)—Oh, Mr. De Retire, I did so enjoy that last volume of yours—that "Little Book of Sonnets," you know.

He—Thank you, I am glad that you enjoyed them. But havn't you any helpful criticism for me?

She—Well, don't you think if you had made them different lengths they wouldn,t have looked so monotonous?—New York Journal.

Fatal Freight Wreck.

Lancaster, April 21.—A disastrous freight wreck occured on the Reading & Columbia railroad, at Manheim early this morning, the night freight running into a car which had been blown from a siding onto the track. The engine was overturned, and Abraham Breitegam, a brakeman of Columbia, was crushed beneath it and instantly killed. Edward C. Johnson the conductor, was also badly injured.

Bicyclists and Tolls.

According to the ruling of the supreme court of Pennsylvania, turnpike companies have the right to charge bicyclists toll at the rate of a cent a mile. As there is extremely little wear caused by a bicycle to a pike, wheelmen consider this one cent a mile rate exhorbitant. Bicyclists are going to ask for the passage of a bill making the bicycle toll one cent a gate.

An Assignment Possible.

Reading, Pa., April 21.—Executions amounting to $39,000 were entered against the Diamond Steel company to-day. The firm claims that the assets will equal the liabilities. An assignment will probably be made in order to prevent the sale of the plant. A meeting of the creditors has been called.

Vicery Don't Mav to Pay.

Baltimore, April 16. — he Vickery-Albertson scandal had a further airing in the city court to day, but the effort on the part of Mrs. Alice L. Albertson to get $30,000 from the wealthy banker was unsuccesful. The jury was out but twenty minutes and returned a verdict of not guilty.

The suit for damages brought by Mrs. Albertson against Mr. Hazeltine Granam Vickery was begun in the city court yesterday. Mr. Vickery, a well known banker and capitalist, is charged with having beaten Mrs. Albertson as the result of a quarrel which they had over his refusal to buy and furnish a house for her in the country.

Mrs. Albertson testified that the relations between her and Mr. Vickery have existed since she was seventeen years old and she was now about forty. When about twenty years old she married a Dr. Gorsuch. The latter died and then she resumed her relations with Mr. Vickery until 1892, when she married a Mr. Albertson and went to Chicago, where she lived two years. He did not treat her well, and Mr. Vickery furnished the money necessary for her to obtain a divorce.

In opening the case for the defense Mr. Linahan read several letters from Mrs. Albertson to Mr. Vickery, in one of which she said that she greatly admired Madeline Pollard. She also told him that if he did not do her justice she would lay her case before an attorney.

One of thy letters rehearsed the story of their first meeting in May, 1872. Mr. Vickery was standing on his steps when she passed. He followed her, flirted with her, and made her acquaintance.

Mrs. Albertson has at times been a correspondent for out-of-town papers. She says her first husband died of a broken heart because he learned of her relations with Vickery.

Queen & Co. All Right Again.

Philadelphia, April 16.—In August, 1894, the optician firm of Queen & Co. made an assignment with liabilities of nearly $180,000 and appraised assets of about $400,000.

The firm has since paid all its debts with interest and to-day the assignee turned over the business to the company again.

The firm of Queen & Co. is one of the largest manufacturers of scientific instruments and opticians in the country. Besides the house here the company has a store in New York city.

Those Charters for Gas Compaies.

Harrisburg, April 16.—Secretary Reeder heard argument to-day in the protest against granting charters to gas companies at Altoona and Bethlehem, argument in the acetyline gas charters will be heard May 6 before the attorney general on a point of law as to whether they are purely manufacturing concerns, as is contended by the projectors. To-day the argument was on the question whether applications or the Altona and Bethlehem charters could be mended so as not to lose their precedence over other applications for the same fields which have been filed since a previous hearing when Secretary Reeder objected to the similarity of names of the new and old companies.

To advertise or not to advertise—
That is the question
Whether 'tis nobler in a business man to suffer
The loss and slowness of unbought bargains,
Or, by advertising sell them.
There's the nightmare of neglected opportunity—
Of space unoccupied in the DAILY NEWS—
That might enrich the merchant's pocket
By emptying his plethoric shelves—
All these and other things to prize,
Should lead the wise to advertise.

The NEWS, is published every day except Sunday, and is the best advertising medium, in Centre County. The above poem, just appeared in the Boston Traveler.

The strength which comes to us from eating nourishing food is better than stimulation, because it is new strength.

The health which belongs to a strong body, well nourished by proper food (properly digested) is the only health that is lasting.

The difference between Shaker Digestive Cordial and other medicines is simple that it helps nature to make strength. It dose not profess to cure sickness, except as that sickness is a result of weakness caused by food not properly digested.

Shaker Digestive Cordial will relieve the pangs of indigestion and make thin, sick, weak people as well as if their stomachs had never been out of order.

It is a gentle aid to the digestion of nature's strength-maker, food.

As to Iron and Steel.

Pittsburg, April 16.—To-morrow edition of the American Manufacturer will say concerning the iron and steel trade: The status of the iron and steel market to-day is about the same as that shown last week, with the exception that in some of the leading lines values have crept up a little and the situation is becoming clearer. For the past two weeks the probable effect of the Bessemer steel combination has been the main question. So it remains to-day, but to some degree the question has been answered by a few sales made at the advanced figures. In other lines the market appears to be unchanged as the higher prices fixed for Bessemer steel have not yet been felt in finished lines. In some branches of the trade the decided spring weather has created a better feeling and has increased activity. It is admitted that business under any ordinary circumstances should show an improvement within a short time, but the several combinations made and being made have mixed things considerable. Hence it may be that the trade will wait for some time yet to see the actual result of the movement for higher prices. Meanwhile the few lines pushed up by the season will continue to grow somewhat better, and the others will remain without material change.

Want to Buy Land

The following letter was received by Recorder Galer Morrison and may prove interesting to some of land mangers who are always looking for some soft snap.

Youngstown, O., April 3.

To the Recorder of Centre County.

Sir:—Seeing the advertisements in the papers for the sale of land for taxes in Centre county, I wish to obtain such information as possible on the same. How much are the taxes? Are they from railroads or town? Can you sell at private sale? When will sale be held? Have you any improvements? There are many working men who are anxious to know all about land and any information will be gladly received.

Z.

Youngstown, Ohio.

As to the above we have little to say. If the gentleman thoroughly understands buying unseated lands, why the right. If he doesn't he had better stay in Ohio. From the tone of the letter we infer that "the many working men" are evidently laboring under a delusion and imagine they are giving largess in Centre County. If this is the opinion they had better keep their fingers out of the fire — they might get them burnt.

Affidavits as to personal character may be necessary to allay suspicion or to attract the simple mind; but what has the manufacturer's private character to do with the efficacy of his so called "cure?" Ely's Cream Balm depends solely upon its reputation of years as a successful cure for catarrh in all its stages. It is absolutely free from mercury or any other drug injurious to the system. Being applied directly to the diseased membrane it affords instantaneous relief and will effect a perfect cure of catarrh.

He Robbed the Mails

Lancaster, Pa., April 16.—Harry Gainer, aged 18 years, who has been employed in carrying the mails between the post-office and railroad station, was arrested to-day, charged with robbing the mails. Gainer confessed after his arrest. The thefts are said to have extended over a long period. Gainer was committed for a hearing before United States Commissioner Montgomery.

Very Likely Drowned.

Pittsburg, April 16.—Tuesday evening Harry Schaffer aged 22, and Harry Brown aged 19, of Rochester; Stanley Earley aged 22, of Washington, Pa., and D. McAfee aged 19, of Uniontown, hired a boat at the Smithfield street bridge for pleasure ride. They have since been missing and there seems little doubt that the boys were drowned.

Castoria is truly a marvelous thing for children. Doctors prescribe it, medical journals recommend it and more than a million mothers are useing it in place of Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, so-called soothing syrups and other narcotic and stupefying remedies. Castoria is the quickest thing to regulate the stomach and bowels and give healthy sleep the world has ever seen. It is pleasant to the taste absolutely harmless. It relieves constipation, quiets pain, cures diarrhœa and wind colic, allays feverishness, destroys worms, and prevents convulsions, soothes the child and gives it refreshing and natural sleep. Castoria is the children's panacea—the mother's friend.

Castoria is put up in one size bottles only. It is not sold in bulk. Don't allow any one to sell to sell you anything else on the plea or promise that it is "just as good" and "will answer every purpose." See that you get C-A-S-T-O-R-I-A.

The Bellefonte girls are going to give a leap year dance to the students at State College on Tuesday April 28th. It would be a good idea if State College were moved to Bellefonte or Bellefonte to State College as it would be a matter of great economy to our girls in the future.

—Bicycleing promises to be a great fad in Bellefonte this summer. The other day a shy maid was out for a spin and was going along Linn street at a lightning rate. When in the vicinity of the Lutheran church she took a tumble, flew about six feet in the air and came down square on her head with her feet straight up in the air. One of the wheels in her head made such close connections with the road that the girl apparently walked on her ear almost to McCoy's corner before anybody could go out and stop her.

SAPOLIO

THE COFFEEPOT.

"Did you think of it, dear?" my wife asked me one morning over the breakfast table. "Father's birthday is day after to-morrow. What present are we to give him this year? Have you made up your mind?"

I was deeply interested in my paper, reading the report of our latest cause celebre, a murder trial, and not paying any attention to her remarks, I answered absentmindedly:

"Ten years state's prison."

"W-h-a-t?" a startled expression coming into her eyes. "Drop that nonsense," she retorted hotly, "and give me a sensible answer if you can."

I put the paper away and looked up, noticing for the first time that she was in a temper and remembering the foolish remark I had made.

"Pardon me, darling," I begged remorsefully. "You know well enough that I couldn't have meant the words in good earnest. I was so very deeply engrossed in the district attorney's address to the jury that I became somewhat confused. Overlook it and be friends. But to the point. What are we to give the old gentlemen? A nice pocketbook?"

"Would that not be like throwing out an indelicate hint?" she replied, somewhat pacified.

"H'm! I don't know. Well, then, how about a morning cap of red, white and black, with a large tassel?"

"He has one."

"Or a comfortable house coat?"

"No, no! I tell you what, 'a self-actor machine,'" she exclaimed triumphantly; "just the thing?"

"A what?" I queried, shaking my head incredulously. "Heaven defend us! What kind of a thing did you say? And what in the world is he to do with it?"

"You know, dear,"—Anna was all excitement now—"how fond father is of good coffee; how he scolds the cook for not making the beverage to his liking. What does she know about making coffee, anyway? Not long since I saw in Mrs. Faber's house a newly invented self-actor extraction coffee and tea machine. I tell you that is exactly what father wants."

"So that is it! A coffee machine! I thought it was a sewing machine or some such thing. What did you call it? A self actor extraction and so forth machine? What a monstrous name! How dreadful!"

"But practical, unspeakably practical, I tell you. You pour the water into the boiler and then some coffee into a little bowl above. Then you light the alcohol beneath. The heated water is by means of a glass tube led from the boiler into the bowl. The boiler's weight diminishes as the water lessens. The latter therefore raises itself a trifle, thus releasing a spring attached to the cover of the alcohol lamp, which falls upon the lamp and extinguishes the flame. Do you understand?"

"Not the least bit was my energetic response. But my wife went on as though it mattered little whether I understood or whether I did not understand:

"And as soon as the boiler was cooled off the beverage in the bowl, as the result of the pressure of the outer air—do you understand now?"

"No!" I excialmed more energetically than before, but with the selfsame result, for my better half kept on just as if I had replied "Yes" instead of "No!"

"As the result of the pressure of the outer air the now ready coffee runs by means of a sieve and the identical tube back into the boiler below. Then you can empty it into cups at your own convenience," she concluded deliberately. "I find that a wonderfully simple procedure."

"Yes, suprisingly simple, my dear," I said doubtingly. "See here, wifey, I think I shall have to take another course in physiology and techonlogy before I would be equal to comprehending the raising of the tube by air pressure and the dropping of the lamp cover as the result of the escape of heated water. And you really intend giving such a what do you call it machine as a present to your father? I am quite sure I don't care, but I bet your father will be displeased, simply because he will not be able to make head or tail of so complicated a thing."

"You have always fault to find with my propositsons," she pouted sensitvely. "Always. But I take the bet. What is it to be for—a kiss?"

"A kiss! As though an everyday affair like that were an object for a wager."

My wife laid the index finger of her right hand on to her little nose, her favorite attitude when in y reflecting mood.

"The other day," she said, "I noticed a splendid brooch in S's window just the thing."

"And I a rocking chair at F's, such as I always longed to posess." I added "It is a bargain. Rocking chair against brooch! If your what do you call it machine does its duty, you will get your brooch; if not, you are bound to buy me the chair. Shake on it.

"All right," my wife acquiesced in a triumphant tone.

She really purchased the extraction machine, which, to judge from appearance, was a pretty neat and brightly polished affair. The birthday arrived, and we solemnly assembled in her father's house and handed him the present, but he looked rather surprised.

"Well, well!" he exclaimed "Just look at this! A filtering machine. Did you ever? I must confess I like the idea, for our city water is not very clear, and the supply is not very good. It may come in handy.

"What are you talking about my dear father?" my Anna interrupted excitedly and in an almost angry tone. You do not really mean to say that you think our love is so trifling as to buy you a filtering machine for a birthday present"?

The old man looked from one to the other of us embarrassed.

"God forbid," he said feelingly, "that I should think so ill of my dear children, but perhaps—yes, I know that's it: one of the newly invented patent electric night lamps, eh"

I grinned. Annn looked daggers at me.

"It is a new office machine father, dear," said my wife's sister Fannie, whose head is always full of mischief. "You throw the beans in one side, and 'cafe au lait' already made flows out on the other. I lain as daylight."

"Fannie my child," said I, with all the dignity I could muster, "please go and bring some hot water and the necessary ground coffee and give us a chance to demonstrate to father the utility of this wonderful machine."

Fannie did so. In the meantime the old man walked several times around the taple, shaking his silvery locks and casting suspicious glances at the complicated thing before him. He looked positively frightened.

"Say, Otto," turning to me with an anxious face, "I hope that this will not explode. We read every day dreadful stories about these new fangled patents in the papers. Please be careful children I beg of you."

"Why, father, the whole proceeding is so very simple," my wife pleaded, defending her present. "Just read what it says here! I take the water," taking the vessel with the hot water from Fannie, "and pour it into the boiler like this—see just so. Aw!" she suddenly cried out. She had scalded her fingers.

It was my turn now. "Please step aside," I said going up to the table. "Let me try. You will injure yourself worse with your experimenting. Hand me the water, Fannie. That's it. Thank you dear! And now I'll light the lamp. Zounds, the stuff won't burn!"

"It is prepared noninflammable alcoho for medicinal purposes," said father.

"Well, then, send for some that will burn, "I cried out of patience, after I had wasted a dozen or so matches in the vain attempt to ignite the lamp.

"I know what I am going to do. I am going to sacrifice my bottle of eau de cologne," Fannie exclaimed magnanimously. "What is the difference!"

She ran off and pretty soon returned with the odorous fluid, emptying it into the lamp afser I had poured out the "medicated" alcohol.

The cologne burned all right, and pretty soon a low, melodious singing could be heard, showing that the machine was beginning to do its work. My wife's countenance was all aglow. Now she was happy; only father looked still anxiouslike and worried.

"Children, better not go near it," he admonished. "Only yesterday three little girls were terrible scalded, you know."

Pretty soon the steam seethed inside the machine, the cover fell upon the lamp and the flame was extinguished. I looked sideways at my wife with a grin.

"According to the recipe," I said maliciously, "the coffee ought to be done now, but I fail to smell the usual aroma. Do you?"

Just then the water in the boiler began seething and bubbling stronger, and a stream of water shot out of the latter into the glass tube and thence into the bowl on top.

"My, how nice!" exclaimed my little 8-year-old brother-in-law, Fred, gleefully. "For all the world like a waterfall!"

My wife was disgusted. She turned pale from subdued excitement and anger. "What can this mean?" she said. "Something must be wrong!"

"I think your self actor extraction machine is suffering from internal troubles. There is altogether too much internal business," I ventured to remark dryly. "I dare say you are beginning to make up your mind where the best rocking chairs are for sale. Eh, dear?"

My wife looked as if she were considering whether it would be the better policy to fall in a fainting fit into my arms or to declare herself vanquished and pay the bet, while her father continued shaking his head until the tassel on the top of his cap swung to and fro like a pendulum.

"Well," he at last remarked, "this is the funniest apparatus I ever saw. Where is the coffee?" when suddenly Fannie, in her usual repulsive way cried:

"What a set of fools we all are! We forgot to put some in."

Sure enough. A napkin had been thrown over the ground coffee brought in by Fannie, and during the excitement of expectancy nobody had given it a though

My wife was delighted. Her machine was to be rede emed, after all. After favoring me with another annihilating look the second act of the drama began. Not a single word was spoken. We were all awaiting the developements.

Again the seething and bubbling sound and even the aroma of steaming coffee filled the room. The brown fluid could be seen passing through the tube, and exclamations of surprise and gratification escaped the lips of those present, Anna was all smiles and sunshine.

"I trust," she said to me mischievously, "that you have not forgotten the address where to buy that brooch we were talking about yesterday.

Even father nodded satisfied and pleasantly,

"This is a practice machine," he mused complacently, pouring out the first cup of the brown beverage, "and what an aroma but rather an odd sort of smell. Strange isn't it? What does it smell like?"

The old man lifted the cup to his lips and tasted the contents. With a jerk he set it down again ugon the table, making a wry face.

"I'll be— I ask your pardon, but that stuff has a positively wicked taste. Monsterous, abomniable, fie! What the dickens does it taste like?"

He expectorated several itmes and pressed his hands to his stomach as if nauseated.

"Just like eau de colonge, father" I suggested, "a very agreeable smell, don't you think? A trifle odd when taken with coffee, but you will undoubtedly get used to the taste when you once become familiar with the machine."

"For shame husband," said my wife, "how mean of you! Undoubtedly, Fannie has accidently spilled a drop of eau de cologne into the boiler while filling the lamp. Where is the harm? It is a bit unpleasant, it is true, but that is all there is about it. We will have to try again, for the machine works all right. Of that we ought to be convinced now."

"Hold!" objected father, lifting his hand with a protesting gesture toward the coffee machine. "No more of this monkey business! I would rather that Anna make us all a cup of coffee now in the old fashioned way, and later you may continue your experiments as long as you like. The machine is just splendid, children," he continued, "and I thank you heartily for your thoughtfulness in giving it to me. but there is something strange and odd about it to which I must get used first, and that takes time for a man of my age."

"Before we go any further with it," I added, "let us tell the girl to give it a thorough cleaning. Lottie"—to the cook—"take this machine into the kitchen and scald lamp and boiler with hot water and soda or some such stuff."

The girl went off with her burden. Shortly afterward we were startled by a loud report, followed by frightened screams from the kitchen, and by a sound of falling and breaking pieces. Something told me that again it was that ill fated machine. I opened the kitchen door. Sure enough, the girl in a dark corner had stumbled with her burden, and the self actor extraction coffee and tea machine lay broken on the floor. The poor frightened girl sobbed. Fannie scolded, my wife wrung her hands in despair, I bit my lipe underneath my bushy mustache, and father looked pleased and relieved.

"Never mind, children," he said. "It is best so. I take this for a sign from above. Providence has interfered. I am conservative in my idea, and am therefore not overfond of the present era of machinery. Stop crying girl"—this to the cook—"and brew a good cup of coffee for my company. And now no more about the matter. I do not wish to have my birthday spoiled."

"How about our bet, Anna?" I asked my wife.

"You have lost that, she quickly responded, "The machine was in perfect order if only"—

"Yes, if only it had not been so imperfect! No, my dear, this time you have lost and not I. You had betteriget ready to go for my rocking chair!"

"What bet are you quarreling about, you two?" asked the old man.

I told him all, and called on him to decide who had won.

"Both of you, was his diplomatic opinion which created another controversy between Anna and myself. Meanwhile Lottie appeared with the coffee, made in "old fashioned" style, and the conversation became general.

On the following morning, however, there appeared a messenger in our dwelling, delivering a rocking chair for me, a splendid piece of furniture, by the way. and exactly five minutes later another messenger came bringing a brooch for my wife, a veritable little gem. To each of the two presents was fastened father's visiting card with inscription. This is my revenge for jeopardizing my life with your self actor extraction coffee and tea machine!"

"Say," I remarked to my wife, comfortably stretched myself in the new rocking chair, "you seem to have been in the right, after all, for your self and so forth machine has proved itself to be very practical indeed—in its results."—From the German.

Done Away With Examination.

The Huntingdon school oard has decided to discontinue holding mid-winter and spring examinations in all the schools of that borough. The promotions of the pupils will hereafter depend upon their averages during the term. They say that this method will do away with two weeks of trying study at the close of the term, prevent cheating among the pupils and be an incentive for better application during the term.

OUR NEW YORK LETTER.

New York, April 18, 1896.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

In Wall street affairs the past week has shown some improvement of feeling. Some of the factors noted in my advices of last week as having an unfavorable aspect, have since changed for the better. The impression is gaining ground that President Cleveland is not likely to precipitate alarm by hasty action on the Cuban situation, which has the effect of mitigating an apprehension that had become quite acute since the resolutions on that question recently adopted by Congress. In business affairs also, there has been some recovery of tone. The fine Spring weather has given an impetus to the demand for seasonable merchandise, and the effect upon the distributing trades has been quite marked. A better feeling prevails in the textile trades, and the disposition shown by the mill owners to restrict production and reduce wages suggests a prospect that this important group of industries may soon find the way towards a better regulation of their interests. In the iron trade also, important progress has been made towards remedying the demoralization in prices through forming combinations in different branches of the business for the purpose of preventing excessive competition and placing production upon a paying basis. The official Spring crop reports have had, on the whole, a favorable result. The present condition of the wheat crop has the effect of strengthening the price of that cereal, and yet it does not prevent the possibility of the crop finally coming out better than present possibilities suggest. In any event the rise in wheat has, at the moment, an exhilarating effect upon whatever is dependent upon the farming interest. Upon the whole, the general outlook is construed as presenting a more hopeful aspect, and as indicating a turning of the tide in favor of some recovery in business.

HENRY CLEWS.

To Build an Extension.

Work will be commenced within the next ten days to lay rails on the Pine Grove Extension of the Bellefonte Central Railroad. Altogether, about four miles of new road will be built, three miles of which are already graded. The work will be commenced on this end and pushed right through until the whole thing is completed. It will take about two months to complete the job. This will be a big improvement on the Bellefonte Central and reflects much credit upon the management of Superintendent F. H. Thomas and his able assistant, Mr. Crissman.

William Thompeon has three steam saw mills going along this road and is doing some heavy shipping. He has received an order from the New York and Pennsylvania Paper Company for about 3000 cords of paper wood or about 200 car loads. He has a large force of men now at work getting out the order and expect to commence this shipping about Sept. 1st.

Traveling Alone.

Saturday night a bright eyed little fellow arrived in this city on the Bald Eagle Valley railroad train. He was only 7 years old, and was traveling alone from Johnstown, Pa., to Syracuse, N. Y. On his person was a tag on which was written, "This young man wants to go to Syracuse, N. Y. His daddy will be grateful to anybody who will help him along." The lad was pleasant faced, shrewd, and was not in the least uneasy at making the journey by himself, but rather enjoyed the adventuresome spirit involved in the trip. He was a ready talker and soon was surrounded by a number of interested men. He left on the late train for Williamsport, where he expected to take the train for New York state.—Lock Haven Democrat.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our regular correspondent.

WASHINGTON, April 13, 1896.

Mr. Cleveland's kindergarten, called by courtesy his Cabinet is in a state of terror. Hilary Herbert is in disgrace and Hokey Smith is afraid that it will be his turn next. Hilary's disgrace was brought about by this having given pedagogue Cleveland false reports as to the condition of affairs at his home. He told Mr. Cleveland that the free silver democrats of Alabama were more noisy than numerous and that the recent primaries would show the state overwhelmingly for sound money. He's sorry now he told that, and he wont forget that half hour he spent with Mr. Cleveland after it became known that the silver democrats had captured the state bag and baggage. Hokey Smith has brought the same report about Georgia, and, according to ex-Speaker Crisp and other silver democrats, they will be found to be no more trustworthy than those of Hilary Herbert. Mr. Cleveland is just beginning to realize that the silver democrats are much more likely to control the Chicago convention than he is, and the realization hasen't added to his amiability.

The last appropriation bill is now before the House and will probably be passed this week. Then the House will only have to act on the Senate amendment to those appropriation bills which have not yet been finally disposed of before being ready for adjournment. Republicans in the House have no fear of Senator Gorman's threat that the present Congress will be arraigned on the stump as a do nothing body. In fact they hope the democrats will make such an attempt. The record of the present House has never been excelled for business-like procedure, and the more the democrats say about the failure of Congress to relieve the Treasury, the more creditable will appear the action of the House in promptly passing the revenue tariff bill that failed in the Senate.

The conclusion of the House committee on Ways and Means not to report a bill providing for a restoration of the reciprocity policy originated by the late James G. Blaine, which was benefitting American producers and manufacturers when repealed by the democratic tariff bill, is on all fours with common sense. The hearings before the committee left no doubt that the public sentiment favors a return to the reciprocity, but that return being impossible while a democrat president is in office the committee wisely decided not to wast time in preparing a bill and putting it through the republican House only to have it hung up by the non-description Senate, as the revenue tariff bill was or vetoed by Mr. Cleveland if it got through the Senate. Reciprocity will come along with the other good things which will follow the restoration of the Republicans to the control of all branches of the government.

No speaker of the House ever received a greater compliment from a political opponent then was paid to Speaker Reed by Representative Dockery of Mo., during a discussion of private bills before the House Mr. Dockery said, "I want to say here in his presence that I honor the present Speaker, Thomas B. Reed. He has stood like a lion in the path of members on both sides of the political aisle who have been pressing bills carrying large sums."

Representative Grosvenor, of Ohio is one of the heavy hitters on the republican side of the House and he struck you a knock out blow when he said to the democratic side of the House "You are paralized by your own utter ineficiency.

The great feature of the administration of Cleveland—the only feature that will save him from futare contumely—is that when the bill to repeal the great revenue producing, industry propagating tarriff law was presented to him, he said; "My name shall never disgrace its pages. You are attempting to place in contrast an administration that paid $250,000,000 of the public debt with one that borrowed $260,000,000, and now trembles each day lest the telegraph brings the news that the gold so borrowed is drifting across the water.

Secretary Dowling, of the National League of Republican Clubs, whose headquarters are at Chicago, is in Washington on League business. His position gives him excellent facilities for knowing the trend of sentiment among the rank and file of republicans, and he says that nearly all the requests for political literature, which are now being received from every section of the country, at the headq rters, ask for tariff speeches and say that the most important question of the campaign will be protection. He says that comparatively few requests are received for financial literature. One of Mr. Dowling's objects in visiting Washington is to arrange for a supply of Congressional speeches for distribution.

Healthy Old Age

is the result of careful living. Keeping the blood pure and the body free from even minor ailments adds years of enjoyment to one's life. The trouble with most of us nowadays is, that we live too rapidly. We are in such a hurry to go some place, or do some thing, that the care of our bodily health is wofully neglected. Nature never pardons neglect. Her laws must be respected, or punishment ensues.

A man may abuse his stomach for a time, but afterawhile dyspepsia comes and liver complaints and kidney troubles. These things develop all the latent weakness in his body. They make digestion imperfect, they prevent proper assimilation, proper secretion of the digestive fluids and the proper excretion of refuse matter. Probably the last is most important of all, for poisonous matter in bowels, liver and kidneys soon gets into the blood and so is carried all over the body. There is no telling where such things will stop.

In the beginning, a little common sense and a simple, natural remedy is all that is needed. Even when the trouble has progressed to serious stages, a simple, scientific remedy working strongly with Nature—soothing, stimulating, invigorating, the organs of digestion, will have a wonderful effect on the whole body. There is really nothing wonderful about it. The blood is all made in the digestive organs. If they are healthy and strong, the blood is the same and it makes every part of the body strong.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery puts the digestive organs into perfect condition. It makes them capable of performing perfectly all their functions. It increases the power of assimilation and so makes good, solid healthy flesh. A large book about it (160 pages) will be sent free to any address, on receipt of six cents in stamps to cover postage. Universal Suffrage.

BY ELIZABETH BURRILL CURTIS.

It is often said, by the opponents of woman suffrage that we have already too large a number of voters, and that government by limited suffrage would show much better results. I wonder whether such people realize what they are saying; whether they know that they are announcing that, in their opinion, a government, of, for, and by the people, is impossible, and that our ideal has been placed too high for our attainment.

Universal suffrage, to me, means the right of every man and woman who is mentally able to do so, and who has not forfeited the right by an ill use of it, to say who shall rule them, and what action shall be taken by those rulers upon questions of moment.

"Who has not forfeited the right," I say, for the right can be forfeited as can that to liberty, or to almost any other so-called "natural right." In old English common law high treason is partly defined as giving aid and comfort to the King's enemies. With us, where the people have taken the place of the King, there can be no such aid and comfort given to their enemies as through any attempt to deny such the suffrage.

The democratic principle demands the life disfranchisement of any one convicted of giving or receiving a bribe to influence the result of an election. The right of a man or woman to self-government is so vital, so sacred, that tampering with it cannot be visited with too heavy penalties.

The saying that eternal vigilance is the price of liberty is as true to-day as it ever was, but we are not willing to pay that price, and therefore the disgraceful condition of affairs in our cities is what it is to-day. But the fault is not primarily with the ignorant masses; it lies with the intelligent voters, the men who should be leaders, but who have wilfully discrowned themselves, and then cry out for a limited suffrage, or in other words, for the benefits of a democratic government without its necessary duties.

It has never, to my knowledge, been suggested that a people's government could be carried on without work or without a great deal of sacrifice. The principle of universal suffrage, like every high ideal, will not run alone. It carries duties with it, duties which are imperative, and to shirk which is filching benefits without rendering an equivalent. When one hears men deliberately avowing that their private interests will suffer if they perform their public duties, or women pleading against the bestowal of the suffrage lest they lose certain legal privileges, which place them on a par with children in their teens, one realizes how far the ideal still is from us, and one looks for the handwriting on the wall, "Mene, mene, tekel upharsin;" "Thou art weighed in the balance, and art found wanting."

Those words were addressed to the monarch who had betrayed his trust. Let us take heed to the warning ere it be too late.

That Saturday Night Brawl.

The season is now at hand when drunken brawls during the night time disturb the quietude of orderly people and law abiding citizens more than they do during the season when they sleep in rooms with closed windows.

The disturbance which took place near the A. M. E. church on Saturday night last, was more than an ordinary drunken event; it came near opening the drunken brawl season with a tragedy, and it is not the fault of the principal in the case that he is not being held for murder at this time.

Notwithstanding that the acts of the perpetrator created alarm and consternation among the good citizens of the neighborhood, who were aroused from their slumbers by a gun shot and other disturbance, there has been no arrest made, thus offering a premium to evil doers and disturbers of the peace. We are told that a large number of people were attracted to the place of disturbance, some in their night clothes, so great was the excitement.

Two constables were called there, one of them the chief of police of our town, who is paid every day in the week to protect our citizens from the annoyance of evil doers as well as to bring law breakers before the proper authorities to account for their evil acts. The offender of the occasion went to his home and secured a loaded gun and returned to the place of his first act, when he cocked the gun and leveled it at his intended victim, and was only prevented from committing murder by the activity of his intended victim who attempted to take the gun from him, and in the scuffle the gun was discharged.

The police officers and constables, who are familiar with these facts and allow the offender to go scott free, have very little regard for the oaths they have taken, which qualified them to protect the good order of our town against disturbers of the peace.

This neglect on the part of our peace officers is only calculated to encourage common drunkards to go on in their evil ways, from bad to worse, until some innocent person may be the victim—because of the neglect of the officers in this particular case.

This advance step to commit a greater crime on the part of a drunken man evidently grows out of the fact that common drunkards are allowed all the room they require to stagger on our sidewalks, compelling ladies to go into the streets to keep from being assaulted by a staggering drunkard, which occurs in view of the efficient (?) officers, who allow them to pass on unmolested. Drunkenness mixed with profanity is becoming more common in our streets every day, the wickedest oaths that a man can devise being uttered day in and day out in hearing of our paid police officers, as well as to the disgust and discomfort of a Christian people, to which no attention is paid by the police officers.

The time is now at hand when the burgess and police committee of council should investigate the conduct of our police officers relative to the disturbance of Saturday night and learn why there have been no arrests made, in which every good and law abiding citizen of our town is greatly interested. CITIZEN.

HISTORY REPEATS.

Once More the Little Conqueror Appears in Scranton.

Nothing in modern medicine has created the sensation that has followed the "little enemies to backache." In Scranton it has been just the same as in other cities, and the march of the conqueror continues. Everywhere the confidence increases as case after case of kidney disorder disappears as if by magic; and how the people do rejoice and talk about it. You know it is so much easier to endorse the statement of some one at home than some one you know nothing about in a far-away town. Well, home testimony is what we have here, and 'tis a dose to cure the skeptic. Mr. Selden Pawling is a citizen of Scranton; his place of residence is 1517 Swetland street. Mr. Pawling was found by our own representative at his work at the Dickson Manufacturing Company's plant, Penn avenue and Vine street, and in a few words gave the following statement. He said: "I began to have trouble about a year ago, when I received a strain, and hard work has helped it along. Then I caught cold, and that settled in my back also. Everything seemed to aggravate the pain in the back, and I grew so bad that I had to lay off from work, having severe back pains almost constantly. I tried several things and finally got hold of Doan's Kidney Pills. They helped me more than anything else I had ever taken; they relieved me in a short time and I grew better each day. The lame and stiff feeling I used to have in the morning gradually passed away. I kept taking Doan's Kidney Pills until I finally got over all my trouble. Should I ever be afflicted in the same way again I shall certainly use the remedy that has cured me this time." Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

A Happy Man Indeed.

Harrisburg, April 21.—The delegates have been slowly gathering for the republican state convention which will be called to order in the opera house at 10 o'clock Thursday morning. Most of the prominent party leaders are here and the bulk of the crowd will be on the ground before to-morrow night. Quay's name is on every lip and his well known features are upon every badge and button so lavishly distributed. It is in every respect a Quay convention. His hand is on the helm and his mind is dominating all other minds in the makeup of the platform and in the preparation of reform legislation for submission to the next legislature.

The contest for chairman of the state committee goes on with John P. Elkin, of Indiana, in the lead so far as to assure his election. Frank Willing Leach is out in a type written statement to-night in which he attacks the method of those opposed to him and declares that he will win without brass bands and fireworks. He claims to have 100 pledgers. This matter will be settled in the republican caucus to-morrow night.

The nominees for congress-at-large will be Galusha A. Grow and James A. Beacom, and the eight delegates-at-large to the national convention are likeley to be Gov. D. H. Hastings, Frank J. Torrance, Allegheny; James Elverson, Philadelphia; James B. Raymond, Blair; ex-Lieutenant Governor Watres, Lackawanna; Senator S. J. M. McCarrell, Dauphin; S. A. Davenport, Erie, and Joseph Bosler, Montgomery.

The permanent chairman of the convention will probably be Auditor General Mylin.

—The heavy rain on Monday evening was indeed a Godsend to lumbermen and farmers. Many of the mountains in Centre county have been on fire for over a week and the loss on timber was commencing to reach enormous figures. The storm had the effect of partially putting out the flames but not altogether as it didn't last long enough. The rain also proved a blessing to farmers whose crops were drying up for want of water. While the storm may have caused little damage yet the amount of good it accomplished will more than equalize the matter.

WILL BE CHAIRMAN HIMSELF

The Junior Senator Orders Elkin to Shake Hands With Leach and Thus The Difficulty is Over—at Least For The Present.

Harrisburg, April 22.—As an important preliminary to the republican state convention to-morrow, a caucus of "the delegates favorable to the candidacy of Senator Quay for the presidency" was held to night in the board of trade rooms. The hall was crowded and the work of the convention mapped out. It was expected that resolutions endorsing Senator Quay for the presidency would be offered, but this was not done, the programme being changed for some reason. The Quay endorsement will be made, however, in the convention platform and it will be strong and to the point.

Quay buttons and badges prevail to-night, and the influence of the junior senator is paramount. He will control the convention by a very large majority. The state capital is crowded with delegates and republican politicans of high and low degree.

The caucus began at 8 o'clock. Lyman D. Gilbert, of Harrisburg, presided, and Jere B. Rex, secretary of the state committee, and Captian J. M. Clark, of New Castle, were the secretaries. When Secretary Rex had called the roll of delegates, State Senator Boies Penrose, of Philadelphia, moved that a committee of five be appointed by the chairman to report to the caucus the business of the convention. The committee was headed by Senator Penrose, and its report was evidently prepared before hand, for in a short time Mr. Penrose read the order of business," which stated that in the absence of the state chairman, the convention would be called to order at 10 a. m. in the opera house, by Frank Willing Leach, of Philadelphia, chairman of the executive committee of the state committee.

No reference was made to the report to the election of a state chairman to succeed Senator Quay, and Mr. Leach, who is a candidate for the state chairmanship arose to his feet with an amendment, The amendment provided for the election of a state chairman by the convention after the report of the committee on resolutions (the platform) shall be read. Mr. Penrose combatted the amendment and declared that it was a standing rule of the republican party for the state chairman to be appointed by the candidates and the permanent chairman of the convention.

Mr. Leach replied in a warm address in which he cited precedents where the party rule in this respect has been suspended, the election of Mr. Quay as state chairman by the convention last year being an example. After some debate the amendment was adopted by a viva voce vote and subsequently the report, amended, was agreed to.

While this was an apparent victory for Mr. Leach, it was not wholly triumphant, for many of the supporters of Deputy Attorney John P Elkin, who is also an active candidate for the state chairmanship as against Leach, voted for the amendment. Both candidates expressed atisfaction that the matter would be directly settled by the delegates and both are confident of success. It is the feeling to-night, however, that Mr. Elkin will be elected to the office.

Upon the motion of Secretary of the Commonwealth Frank Reeder a committee of five was named and Mr. Reeder at the head to select eight delegates and as many alternates at large to the national convention and four presidential electors at large. The committie reported the following who will be formally elected by the convention:

Delegates at large— Governor Daniel Hastings, Centre county; James Elverson Philadelphia; Frank J Torrance, Allehany James S Beacom, Westmoreland; T L Flood, Crawford; Joseph Bosler, Montgomery; W W Griest, Lancaster; and F H Baker, Cambria.

Alternates at large— Charles Miner, Luzerne; State Senator Boiles Penrose, Philadelphia; State Senator Arthur Kennedy, Alleghany; State Senator S M J McCarrel, Dauphin; Frank E Holler, Cumberland; Charles W Miller, Venango; James B Raymond, Blair, and Charles M Plank, Berkes.

Electors at large—Joseph Wharton Philadelphia; Alex Patton, Clearfield; William Withero, Alleghany, and Lyman Gilbert, Dauphin.

Delegate Holland of Montgomery County, named ex-Speaker of the House Harry K Boyer, of Philadelphia, as temporarie secretaries. This was adopted.

At 8.45 o'clock the caucus adjourned.

The fact that James Beacom, of Westmoreland, has been included in the list of delegates at large shows that he has withdrawn from the contest for congressman at

NERVOUSNESS

Is the Wail of the Nerves for Food.

People with Weak, Flabby Nerves are the Ones who Suffer. They may be Relieved by Building up their Nerves with a Nourishing Nerve Food.

An Interesting Interview with a Prominent Physician and a Case in Point Cited.

From the Journal, Kirksville, Mo.

"What a weak-kneed individual."

The person referred to did, indeed, look broken down, dispirited, and lifeless.

"What is the matter with him?"

"I scarcely know. During the cool weather he seems to be all right and to have some life and a little ambition; but the moment the hot weather comes he simply wilts down and seems to have neither strength nor vitality."

That explained the case. The man was in a generally run-down condition with not enough reserve force to resist the enervating effects of the season. His nerves were weak, unstrung as we say. The food he ate only partially reinforced his strength. The result was, he had constantly drawn on his reserve force so long that his nerves finally rebelled and sounded the gong for him to stop. If the signal be heeded and he take steps to refresh and build up his nervous system, he will recover; if not and the strain goes on, nothing can save him.

"If such a case be taken in time will the use of good, wholesome food and plenty of rest restore the patient?"

"If the patient have a naturally strong constitution it possibly may, otherwise, no. What is needed is a food which is specially adapted for the nerves. Something which contains the elements that go to make nervous force. It must be a food, not a tonic; a strength-giver, not a stimulant."

"Is there anything specially adapted to this purpose?"

"There are a good many things recommended for this purpose. But the trouble with nearly all of them is, they are only tonics or stimulants. They apparently benefit, but it is only for a time; then the patient is worse than before. But there is one food for the nerves, I am happy to say, in which I have the greatest confidence, which is in reality a food. It contains just those vitalizing principles which impart new nerve force; it builds up the nerves, and by imparting to them new strength gradually COAXES them back to a normal, healthy condition. They are fortified against the hot weather, the man recovers his energy, his force, and he walks with an elastic step. He drives his work with a will, where before it drove him. His spirits rise, and everything looks bright to him. This food is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, which are now known and used the world over—in North and South America, England and the English provinces, Canada, India, So. Africa, France. They are so widely known and their excellent effects in nerve building so much talked about both here and abroad, that it is not necessary for me to enlarge further on the subject. But I can assure you the medical profession everywhere are very glad indeed to avail themselves of this nerve food, so scientifically compounded, and that they use it very largely in their practice."

This was a conversation recently had between our reporter and a noted local physician, whose opinion is very highly regarded in medical circles, and it furnishes a clue for thousands who are suffering during these summer months from weakened nervous force.

To show the results of this nerve food on a special case, to prove the points above made, our reporter made the following interview:—

Henry Gehrke is a thrifty and prosperous German farmer living four miles south of Bullion, in this (Adair) county, Mo. Mr. Gehrke has a valuable farm and he has been a resident of the county for years. He is very well-known hereabouts and well respected wherever he is known. Last week a reporter of the Journal stopped at Mr. Gehrke's and while there became much interested in Mrs. Gehrke's account of the benefit she had not long since experienced from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. She said she wanted everybody to know what a great medicine these pills are, but as so many people are praising them now-a-days, she modestly doubted whether her testimony could add anything to what others had already said of them. Her only reason for talking for publication about Pink Pills was that the people of Adair and neighboring counties might be convinced, if any doubted, that oft-published testimonials concerning Pink Pills were genuine statements from the lips of persons who have been benefited by the use of them. Speaking of her own interesting experience, Mrs. Gehrke said:

"A little over a year ago I was completely broken down. I had been taking medicine from a doctor but grew worse and worse until I could scarcely go about at all. The least exertion or the mere bending of my body would cause me to have smothering spells, and the suffering was terrible. I thought it was caused by my heart. When everything else had failed to relieve me and I had given up all hopes of ever being anything but a helpless invalid, I chanced to read some testimonials in the Farm, Field and Fireside, also in the Chicago Inter-Ocean and the suffering of the people who made the statements were so nearly like the suffering I had endured that when I read that they were so greatly benefited by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, I did not hesitate to go at once and purchase two boxes. I took them according to directions and before the first box was used I felt a good bit better. Really the first dose convinced me that it was a great remedy. Before the two boxes were used up I sent my husband after three more boxes, so I would not be without them. When I had used these three boxes I felt like a different woman and thought I was almost cured.

"Since that time I have been taking them whenever I began to feel badly. When I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, I weighed only 113 pounds and after I had been using the medicine for about six months I weighed 122 pounds. I have had a good appetite ever since I commenced taking Pink Pills and instead of mincing along, picking such food as I could eat even with an effort, I eat most anything that comes on the table. I am not the invalid I was. I do not have to be waited upon now as if I was a helpless child, but I work all the time, doing the housework and ironing and working in the garden without that dreadful feeling which comes over a person when they are afraid they are going to have one of those spells that I used to have.

"Work don't hurt me any more. I honestly believe that had it not been for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I would now be in my grave. I still have what the doctor calls bilious colic but the Pink Pills have made me much better and the spells are not so frequent and are nothing like as painful as before I began to use them. I would not be without the Pink Pills for that disease alone under any circumstances to say nothing of the other diseases for which they are especially recommended. I take pleasure in telling my neighbors the benefits I have received from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and know of several who have taken my advice and have been greatly benefited by them."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are sold in boxes (never in loose form, by the dozen or hundred) at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists or directly by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

One Boy Kills Another.

Scranton, Pa., April 19.—Frank Libundzinski was shot and killed by a companion named Frank Prebuliski, at the home of the murdered boy in Priceburg, near this city, this afternoon. The two boys were about 18 years of age and were playing with a gun, when it was discharged, either accidentally or intentionally, it is not positively known which, and Libundzinski was killed.

The coroner's jury fixed the blame on the boy in whose hands the gun was discharged, and consequently he was arrested and placed in jail to await trial on a charge of murder preferred by the mother of the dead boy.

An Opinion in a Road Case.

In the Superior Court in Pittsburg on Wednesday Justice James A. Beaver handed down an opinion in the case of Stuffner against Stuffner, appealed by David Stoffner from the quarter sessions court of Juniata county. It is a road case and the question involved is: "It is essential to the validity of the return of viewers appointed to lay out a public road and assesses the damages occasioned thereby that the viewers indicate in their report the width of said road as the basis upon which the assessment of damages was made."

The court decided that the viewers have no authority over the width whatever and reverses the decree of the lower court.

REVOLT AT RIDGWAY.

Centre and Clearfield Refuse to Join the Combine of Elk, Forest and Clarion.

Ridgeway, April 16.—Conferees from the five counties comprising the Twenty-eighth Congressional District met here to-night for the purpose of electing two national delegates, two alternate and one Presidential Elector. When the conference convened the delegates from Clearfield and Centre refused to enter the conference, stating as their reason that a combination had been effected between Forest, Elk, and Clarion, whereby they were to control the conference and eliminate Centre and Clearfield from any voice in the election of delegates. The conferees from the two latter counties held a separate conference, elected their own officers, and adopted the following protest:

"We, the conferees representing the 10,882 Republican voters of Clearfield and Centre counties, being almost two-thirds of the republican voters of the twenty-eighth Congressional District, having come here to attend the conference to select the delegates to represent said district in the republican national convention and having ascertained that a combination had been entered into by Elk, Forest and Clarion counties, representing but 6216 republican votes, by which these three counties have assumed to control said conference and name national delegates, alternates and Elector without consultation with us, and entirely ignoring our right to have a voice in the selections, contrary to the wishes of our constituents and the candidate of Forest County for national delegate, although having asked the support of his people and being selected by them to fill said office, appeared before us and confessed that he had not acted in good faith with his people in Forest county in asking for the nomination of national delegate, and that he was only to be used as an instrument for the purpose of carrying out the combination and that he would refuse to allow his name to go before the conference to be voted for by us or his own conferees, claimed to have made an arrangement with the conferees of McEwen, of Elk, and Wilson, of Clarion, whom were to be elected national delegates, and J. C. Campbell of Forest Electos, we refuse to enter the conference and hereby earnestly protest against said action and denounce the same as calculated to injure and demoralize the Republican party of this district and prevent a fair expression of the sentiment of the voters.

"We also most emphatically condemn the conferre system of making nominations as being unfair and unjust to a majority of the Republican voters of the district. We also especially condemn the manner in which the present conference was called by H. R. Wilson, candidate for national delegate of Clarion County, without consultation with or authority from the party organization, candidates or conferees of the other counties." Signed,

FRANK SMITH,
R.D. SWOOPE,
E. S. GRAY,
W. E. GRAY,
W. L. MALIN,
W. F. REEDER,
Conferees.

The conferees from Elk, Clarion and Forest continued their conference after the withdrawal of the two other delegations and elected J. H. McEwen, of Elk, and H. R. Wilson, of Clarion, national delegates; S.S. Crissman of Centre, and A. H. Woodward of Clearfield, as alternates. Joseph Campbell of Forest, was chosen Presidential elector.

Resolutions heartily indorsing the candidacy of Senator Quay for President were unanimously passed.

Hood's Sarsaparilla, taken at this season, will make you feel strong and vigorous and keep you from sickness later on.

A lady in a country town whose fastidiousness could not be suited at home concluded to send to a city milliner for a bonnet, and the following is a copy of her order: "Please make and send by freight if that way is cheaper than by express or mail, a new bonnet. I do not want it to cost more than $2.50, and this is the direction: Measure of head from eat to ear over top of head 12 inches; from ear to ear under my chin, 6½ inches; from forhead to back hare, 7 inches. I want a black lace bonnet with streamers, and rosetts of red or yallow satin ribbon, and would like a bunch of pink Rozes or a blue plume behind with a large jett buckel, if arrificials is still the go I want a bunch of grapes or a bird's tale somewhares. I do not desire anything too fansy but if you think a reath of pansies would look good you may put one on. I have some good pink ribbon here at home, so you need not put on strings."

Bicycle Factory Burned.

Toledo, April 19.—The factory of the Dauntless Bicycle company, a four-story brick structure located on Superior street, in the heart of the factory district, was gutted by fire shortly after 1 o'clock this morning. The loss on the building is estimated at $25,000, and on stock and machinery about $150,000. Five hundred hands are thrown out of employment. Half a dozen families in residences adjoining were driven out and are homeless. The loss to these will not exceed $10,000.

Fatal Accident to a Little Boy

Sharon, Pa. April 19.—George Davis, aged weive years, was killed by a freight train this after noon while trying to rescue a small dog which was crossing a bridge. The boy's foot became fastened between the ties and the train ran down upon him, frightfully mutilating him.

Caught Between the Trucks.

The funeral was held on Saturday and was very largely attended. The deceased was 32 years old and leaves a widow and three children to survive him.

Clayton, Nevada Co., Ark., Jan. 28, 1895.

Eureka Chemical & Mfg., Co., La Crosse Wis.—Gentlemen: For forty years I used tobacco in all its forms. For forty-five years of that time I was a great sufferer from general debility and heart disease. For fifteen years I tried to quit, but couldn't. I took various remedies, among others "No-To-Bac," "The Indian Tobacco Antidote," "Double Chloride of Gold," etc., etc., but none of them did me the least bit of good. Finally, however, I purchased a box of your "Baco-Cure" and it has entirely cured me of the habit in all its forms, and I have increased thirty pounds in weight and am relieved from all the numerous aches and pains of the body and mind. I could write a quire of paper upon my changed feelings and condition.

Yours respectfully, P. H. MARBURY.

MIGHT HAVE MET DEATH.

A Runaway Team Comes Near Causing a Terrible Calamity on Sunday Evening—Escaped Uninjured.

William Conley of this place had an experience on Sunday evening which he will not forget very soon. He met with an adventure that surpasses dime novel tales as far as being thrilling is concerned. He had a race for life and after many horrible moments of agony he came out on top without a scratch.

On Sunday Mr. Conley, with his wife and little daughter Nellie and Mr. Claude Moore, drove to Howard. They occupied a bran new two-seated carriage and drove a double team of horses. They arrived at Howard in the morning, and spending the day there with friends, they started for home about 6 o'clock in the evening. The trip homeward as far as Curtin's works was uneventful and nothing happened to mar the day's enjoyment. But the occupants of the carriage little dreamed of the terrible experience they were soon to encounter.

They were driving along the road about an half mile this side of the old Curtin works and were letting the horses jog along slowly while they admired the scenery along the wayside. The road in that vicinity is very sandy and they could not even hear their own carriage moving along. Suddenly the horses gave a slight start and Mr. Conley, who was doing the driving, thought they were just feeling good and paid little attention to them beyond leaving them go a little faster. Mrs. Conley happened to glance back and to her horror saw within a few fet back of the carriage a runaway team coming at a terrible pace and threatening to crash into them the next second. She screamed to her husband, apprising him of the awful danger they were in. Mr. Conley, taking in the situation at a glance, lashed his horses with all his might to try to keep away from the wild animals just behind them. He pulled his team to one side hoping the runaways might pass them, but instead they followed right back of him. Mr. Conley then realized it was a matter of life or death and that whatever was to be done had to be done instantly. Seizing the whip he lashed his horses and yelled to them to go on. It was a thrilling race for life and one that would have to be seen to realize its seriousness. The occupants of the carriage could see the inflamed nostrils of the horses within two feet of their faces and feel their hot breath at every step. On they tore. Every instant the runaways threatened to run into the carriage. The pole of the spring wagon to which the wild horses were hitched came within a few inches of plowing through the carriage and the occupants knew that if that happened it would mean certain death to all. Both teams were running at a mad pace. It seemed impossible to gain on the runaways and the horses seemed to be going faster every moment. The terrible race was kept up for almost a mile and there was no telling how it would end. Had the horses hesitated for a second or stumbled all would have been over in a second. It was by this time a question as to which team would play out first. The horses in front really seemed to realize the great danger and plunged forward at a lightning rate and for an instant it seemed as if the runaway team was to be out done. But it was for an instant only and again they were within two feet of each other.

Mr. Conley's wonderful presence of mind was the only thing that saved the lives of everybody present. He only too well realized the gravity of the situation and that it all depended upon him to escape. With firm hold on the reins with one hand he plied the whip with the other knowing that matters would soon come to a crisis.

But right here a fortunate thing occurred. Just when the people in the carriage were giving up all hope of escaping from their wild pursuers, the latter turned into a cross-road and the former were at last out of danger.

It was indeed a miraculous escape and one never to be forgotten. Mr. Conley and the others reached Bellefonte safely and without a mark to show what a terrible ordeal they had just passed through. It was an awful experience and one unparalelled in Centre County.

The runaway team was finally caught on Aichey's Hill. It belonged to Patrick Nyman of Taylor Ore Bank. Nyman had gotten out of the wagon down the road and left his horses standing untied while he went into a house. When he came out the horses had left and caused the above tated adventure.

AN ATTEMPTED ROBBERY.

Bold Work of Burglars on Thomas Street Early Saturday Morning.

A bold attempt was made to rob the home of Conductor John Hall on South Thomas street early this morning and but for the wonderful presence of mind of Mrs. Aaron Fridel, the robber would have been successful. As it was he was frightened away before he could accomplish much.

It seems that shortly after 2 o'clock this morning, Mrs. Fridel of Williamsport, who is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hall was awakened by a slight noise made by the raising of a window. It was very dark in her room, which is in the south west corner of the house, and as she could see nothing she partly went to sleep again. In a few moments she was again awakened, this time by hearing somebody walking in her bed room. When her eyes had grown accustomed to the dark and she was able to see discovered that a man was ransacking her bureau. She lay there in bed and watched the unbidden guest in his tour of investigation for some time and then she screamed. Mr. and Mrs. Hall were attracted to her room by the noise as the burglar was just going out the window. An examination was made and everything was found to be safe and nothing stolen.

Who the villianous intruder was is a mystery -Mrs. Fridel says she was unable to see his face and he thus probably wore a mask. She says he was rather large and well built man but beyond this she was unable to give any information as to his rpobable identity.

The object of the robbery was not to secure jewelry or other valuables but only money, as Mrs. Fridel had a gold watch and a number of little trinkets lying on the bureau that were left untouched. Mr. Hall had just received his monthly pay on Wednesday and it is thought the robber was under the impression that he was in Mr. Hall's bed room and was evidently hunting for the money. He had gained enterance by stepping upon the window sill on the first floor and then standing on top of the shutters was able to crawl in the bed room window which was directly over the first floor window. It was indeed a bold attempt and very fortunate for Mr. and Mrs. Hall that nothing was taken and no injury done.

This makes the third time this same house has been entered by burglars within a year. And attempt at robery was make last summer, one about seven weeks ago and the one this morning. Mr. Hall is hereafter going to give the intruders warm receptions and decorate them with bullet holes. It wouldn't be a bad idea either.

"The Thoroughbred."

A small crowd was in attendance at Garman's Opera House to witness "The Thoroughbred," of which so much has been said for the past two weeks. The acting was very ordinary while the songs were vulgar and not fit for a lady to hear. Had "The Thoroughbred" been advertised for "men only" it would have been different but when ladies have to listen to songs that are vile and revolting it is going a little too far. If this is the class of work "The Thoroughbred" has been producing all winter it is a wonder it hasen't gone under long ago. It would have been allright had one or two parts been left out, but as they were not we decidedly object.

BURNED AT THE LIME KILNS.

Lewis Batt Meets With a Serious Accident on Tuesday.

Lewis Batt, an employee at Morris' Lime Kilns at Coleville, met with an accident on Tuesday afternoon which might have cost him his life. As it was he was horribly burned about the right hand and face.

It seems that Batt was doing some blasting and about 3 o'clock had just gotten a new blast ready to fire when the accident happened. He had arranged the fuse and applying a match to it started to walk back. He threw the burning match into a can which he supposed was empty but which contained quite a good bit of powder. The powder ignited in an instant and before anyone could realize what was wrong Batt was completely enveloped in the flames which shot up higher than his head. The young man, however, never flinched and although his right arm and hand were badly burned, he bravely smothered the flames with his other hand. It was all over in an instant and almost before anyone could move, the deed was done. Willing hands were soon to the rescue and everything possible was done to ease the unfortunate man's suffering.

Dr. M. J. Locke was immediately summoned and the injured man was hurriedly conveyed to his home at Coleville where his wounds were skilfully dressed. It was at first thought that he had inhaled some of the flames and this caused a good bit of anxiety for a while but on examination proved this to be untrue. It is not thought that the accident will injure his eye sight but his face was pretty badly singed. At the latest account he was resting as well as could be expected and is now on a fair way to recovery. The young man has our sincere sympathy in his hour of misfortune and we truly hope he will soon be around again enjoying his usual good health.

Found Unconscious on the Street.

On Friday night about 11 o'clock Chief Police Montgomery received word that a State College student had gotten into a fight near the bridge and was pretty badly hurt. Montgomery started out to hunt the matter up and found out that the fellow had been last seen staggering along in a dazed way out Water street. With this clue to work on the search was commenced. The whole street was gone over but no trace of the injured boy could be discovered. When the searchers were about to give the matter up a black object was seen lying along the road near the Laundry. It proved to be the person who they were looking for. He was lying on his back unconscious and his forehead was badly cut over his left eye from which the blood was flowing profusely. It took some time to rouse the young man from the heavy stupor in which he was in He was put to bed and his wounds dressed but even then he had not entirely recovered his senses.

It seems that he had gotton into some difficulty with some Bellefonte boys and that he received a terriable drubbing at their hands. It is said he was knocked into the gutter and it is supposed that his head struck the curbstone stunning him It is thought he went out Water street simply to get away from the ones who had been fighting with him and that he was so badly dazed that he fell over on the road and laid there unconscious until the officers found him.

Who Was Your Informant?

"An almost fatal shooting occurred at Bellefonte yesterday morning. Henry McMullen was shooting wild ducks when a 32 calibr ball from his gun struck William Hassinger in the right temple. The physicians succeeded in removing the ball, but the wounded man lies in a critical condition at his home. McMullen was not arrested."—Philipsburg Journal.

The above is about as badly botched up as it possibly could be. In the first place Henry McMullen was the man who was shot and it was Harry Hassinger who did the shooting. Of course McMullen was not arrested. One often hears of people being arrested for getting "shot," but this was another kind of shot altogether.

Read This Too.

Dayton (O.) Journal, Nov. 11, 1887.—"Drummer Boy of Shiloh.—Last night witnessed the opening performance of this popular play, and to say it was a grand success is not paying it too much credit. For a first night performance it was the best ever given in Dayton. The cast is all that could be desired, and "caught on" at once with the audience. Fred Weigle, as uncle Joe, is the finest negro character ever seen here.

The Drummer Boy of Shilo will be produced in Bellefonte at Garman's Opera House on April 29-30 and May 1st. Don't fail to see it. It will be fine.

Leap Year Party.

The colored ladies of the Bellefonte 400 give a leap year party this evening at the home of Miss Emma Green on St Paul St. The invitations are very scarce—so George Freeman says—and those who have received them should consider themselves very lucky. The indications are that it will be a swell affair in every particular.

BEEZER—TATE.

A Pretty Nuptial Event Solemnized on Wednesday Evening.

A pretty wedding was that solemnized on Wednesday evening by which Mr. George Beezer and Miss Mary A. Tate were united for life. The ceremony was performed by Father McArdle at the Catholic parsonage and was witnessed by almost an hundred invited guests.

It was just 7.30 p. m. when the wedding couple drove up to the parsonage in a cab, followed by many carriages containing the guests. Father McArdle was waiting for them inside and soon everything was ready for the happy event to be consummated. Miss Agnes Beezer, a sister of the groom, was the brides maid and Mr. George Hazel was best man.

The wedding ceremony was short and soon the newly married couple and guests were conveyed to the home of the bride, where a delicious wedding supper was served. A pleasant hour was spent around the tables discussing the good things to eat and toasting the bride and groom. Mr. and Mrs. Beezer will go to housekeeping in the rooms over the Gazette office in the near future.

The presents received were many and valuable. Among them were a handsome bedroom set, tables, sets of dishes, silverware and many other things too numerous to mention.

The newly married couple are too well known in Bellefonte to need any further introduction here. Mr. Beezer is a prominent Bellefonte liveryman and controls a nice business. Miss Tate is one of Bellefonte's handsomest daughters and will make a kind and loving wife, fit to preside over any household. We extend to the young couple our hearty congratulations and best wishes, and hope that their future life will be one of happiness and prosperity and that their pathway in life may be strewn with roses.

Penns Valley.

I was in Spring Mills last week, the town presents quite a lively appearance just now. Quite a number of dwellings are being repaired and painted, and many old and dilapidated stables "doctored up". I noticed that T. M. Gramly, President of the Spring Mills Creamery Co, is having his residence entirely remodelled, interior and exterior. I am informed that this dwelling was about one of the first frame building erected in the village. The grounds surrounding this property are very beautiful and inviting, perfectly level, while here and there stand giant trees with huge outstretched branches affording ample shade. On the west is a magnificent lawn, which now resembles a vast field of green velvet. Evidently when all the improvements are all completed, Mr. Gramly will have a home and residence not surpassed in the valley.

Several candidates were down the valley last week. J. S. Herman of Lemont Republican candidate for the nomination for Sheriff, looked quite natural and seemed pleased at the number of friends he had down this way. D. C. Gingrich of College township, also Republican candidate for the same nomination was down the valley Mr. G. at one time was one of the leading merchants of Millheim, and has quite a number of friends in this neighborhood. M. M. Musser of Haines township, Republican candidate for the nomination for commissioner, was also on the move last week. Mr. M. is well known throughout this section, having been a prominent merchant at Aaronsburg for several years.

I met Post master Spangler of Potters Mills down the valley last week. He reports everything as flourishing at the bank. Farmers busy plowing etc. He says in Georges valley, some of the wheatfields appear to be a little off.

Simon Harper has retired from the firm of Harper and Kramer at Centre Hall. Mr. Harper has not been in first rate health or some time. Kremer & Son (new firm) will continue the business at the old stand.

The other day I read an advance copy of "A glance at Penns Valley" by Rev Illingsworth of the M. E. Church, formerly of this circuit, but now of Warriorsmark. The book is a very neat volume of about one hundred pages, with quite a large number of illustrations. The book is exceedingly well written, some of the descriptions a trifle overdrawn, yet explicit and very interesting and for so small a compas, contains a vast amount of very useful information.

Dr. J. R. Harter of Millheim was through the valley on Friday last. If my information is corret, he was attending quarterly conference of the M. E. church at Spring Mills.

War Over Girls' Gowns.

Stroudsburg, Pa., April 21.—The gowns to be worn by fair graduates who will appear at the East Stroudsburg high school commencement have been made a chief issue in that borough. The school board has been discussing the matter vigorously. At a meeting of the board the question was taken up, but nothing definite was done. The staid members of the board prefer to see plain gowns on the pretty girl graduates. It is argued that as some girls can afford much more expensive dresses than others the line ought to be drawn at a point where all can afford to go. Prof. Unger, principal of the school, claimed that the board had no jurisdiction in the matter and that they had better go slow.

Scrofula

Infests the blood of humanity. It appears in varied forms, but is forced to yield to Hood's Sarsaparilla, which purifies and vitalizes the blood and cures all such diseases. Read this:

"In September, 1894, I made a misstep and injured my ankle. Very soon afterwards

A Sore

two inches across formed and in walking to favor it I sprained my ankle. The sore became worse; I could not put my boot on and I thought I should have to give up at every step. I could not get any relief and had to stop work. I read of a cure of a similar case by Hood's Sarsaparilla and concluded to try it. Before I had taken all of two bottles the sore had healed and the swelling had gone down. My

One Correct Answer.

An amusing little story was told a good many years ago in connection with Governor Mattox of Vermont. At one time he was chairman of the commitee appointed to examine candidates for admission to the bar of Caledonia county.

He reported that one of the candidates was, in his opinion, unqualified, having answered correctly but one of the question put to him.

"Only one? Well, what was that?" asked the presiding judge.

"I asked him what a freehold estate is," replied Mattox.

"Important question," said the judge. "And what was his reply?"

"He made it without the least hesitation," said the chairman, with a twinkle in his eye. "Of course that fact is in his favor."

"Well, what did he say?" asked the judge, with some impatience.

"He said, 'returned the chairman, "that he didn't know." —Youth's Companion.

Poor Indeed.

There are degrees and kinds of poverty, just as there are differences of opinion among those who compute and measure poverty and riches by different standards. Some men deem themselves poor because they are less rich than others, again there are comparatively poor people who are satisfied with a competence, There is a kind of poverty for which no wealth can compensate, namely, a poverty of bodily stamina, evinced by nervousness and a derangement of the functions of digestion, bilious secretion and the bowels. To restore vigor upon a permanent basis there is one remedy that fully covers the requirements, "fills the bill," and this is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. By restoring digestion, giving a healthful impulse to the action of the bowels and liver and tranquilizeing the nerves, it fulfills the condition necessary to a resumption of strength by the system. It also overcomes malaria and rheumatism.

Doctors Disagree as to the Cause and Treatment of Catarrh.

Nearly everyone has their head choked up, more or less, with catarrh in some form. Every physician has his own method of treating this disease. Dr. Strachmore says the profession is singularly unsuccessful in the treatment of catarrh. He claims camphor is one of the best remedies for inflamation, such as catarrh, cold in the head, etc., and says that he prescribed Pretzinger's Catarrh Balm as it is the only preparation that contains camphor in large quantities and he has found it singularly successful in the treatment of the disease. He long ago consigned his douches and other instruments to the attic as he considers their use injurious. Mrs. Alfred Arnold of Startle, Jefferson Co., Ohio, writes that she had catarrh for 18 years and tried many remedies, but nothing helped me like Pretzinger's Catarrh Balm. My head is clear and my catarrh is gone." A small sample may be obtained by sending a 2 cent stamp to Pretzinger Bros., Chemists, Dayton, Ohio.

And All Was Well.

They met by chance on Michigan avenue—a big man and a little man—and accidentally bumped into each other. Shaking his fist at the big man, he shouted

"You did that on purpose!"

"No, I didn't."

"I say you did! Will you fight me right here and now?"

"I am no fighter."

"Of course not! You are afraid to tackle me!"

"No, I'm not; but I'll bide my time. I can wait."

"Going to hit me with a brickbat some dark night, are you?"

"No, sir. I shall take a manly revenge."

"Have me arrested, eh?"

"No, sir. I am going to California. When I get there, I shall box up a stone weighing about 20 pounds and send it to you by express C. O. D. It will cost you about $14 to pay the charges."

"But I won't receive it."

"Oh yes, you will. Curiosity to know what is in the box will be too strong for you. You'll take it quick enough and my revenge will be complete."

"See here, old fellow," remarked the little man, after a moment's thought, "I was too fast. I have wronged you, and I beg your pardon. Let's shake and make up."

And then they shook, and then all was well.—Detroit Free Press.

comes to stay

There is more than one food which will cause the body to increase in weight. A free supply of sugar will do this; so will the starchy foods; cream, and some other fats. But to become fleshy, and yet remain in poor health, is not what you want. Cod-liver oil increases the weight because it is a fat-producing food. But it does far more than this. It alters, or changes, the processes of nutrition, restoring the normal functions of the various organs and tissues.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-liver Oil with hypophosphites, is pure cod liver in a digested condition. So that when a person gains in weight from taking Scott's Emulsion, it is because of two things: First, the oil has acted as a fat-producing food; and, second, it has restored to the body a healthy condition. Such an improvement is permanent; it comes to stay.

DELIBERATELY KILLS HIMSELF

Had Started Out to Hunt Flowers For His Niece and Never Came Back—Had Threatened to Kill Himself Before.

William Gibson Morrow, a prominent and wealthy citizen of this county, committed suicide suddenly morning by shooting himself through the head in the barn of his brother. A. D. Morrow, at Tipton. He was a consumptive and the best treatment at home and abroad had failed to give him relief, and worry over his physical life no doubt led him to taking his life. His relatives are among the most prominent in this county, Matthew W. Morrow, one of the Republican nominees for the legislature being a cousin. His brother heard the fatal shot fired, and when the body was found it was in the barn covered by a blanket and the revolver still warm, held tightly in the right hand. He was 47 years old and unmarried.

A Gold watch and about $200 were found on his person. He lived about fifteen minutes after he shot himself. It seems that he had threatened to commit suicide some time ago but was pursuaded not to.

Burgess and Sabbath.

Greensburg, Pa., April 17.—J. W. Wallace, chief burgess of the borough of Parnassus, conscience smitten at what he considered to be an unholy act of one of the members of the board of councilmen, has resigned his office. It is said that an ordinance placed before the boardithe other day was written by a member on the sabbath day. When Mr. Wallace came into the possession of the facts he promptly presented his resignation giving as a reason that he had no desire to act in conjunction with such an unholy council as he believe the Parnassus to be.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by druggists, price 75c. per bottle. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Found a Snake in Her Desk.

Chester, Pa., April 17.—School boys at Upton conceived a cruel joke to play upon their teacher, Miss Harriet Castle. They caught a snake alive and put the wriggling thing in her desk during her temporary absence. When Miss Castle opened the desk she was nearly paralyzed with fright, as the snake made a dart for liberty. One of the boys has been suspended.

Shot His Wife and Himself.

Lititz, Pa., April 17.—Joseph Dougherty formerly of Phiadelphia, who has been living here for the last fifteen months, this evening shot his wife and then shot himself. The women died several hours later but Dougherty is still living. The women was only 20 years old.

The couple came to Lancaster this afternoon and Dougherty became partially intoxicated. He purchased cartridges for a pistol and immediately after his return home shot his wife in their bed room. The women's wound was at first not considered fatal, but she lived only two hours. The couple had been married but four months and no cause is known for the tragedy.

The B. & O.'s Floating Debt.

Baltimore, April 17.—The Baltimore reorganization committee of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad gave out a statement to day which shows that the floating debt of the company is over $16.000,000.

SANDERS HAD A GUN.

He Makes Use of it and has Morris Rine for a Target.

Quite a little excitement was caused in the West Ward on Saturday night about 11 o'clock by the loud report of a revolver followed by a woman's screams.

It took but a few moments for a crowd to gather near the A. M. E. church where the shooting had taken place, and then it was found out what the trouble was.

It seems that Morris Rine and Harry Sanders (colored) had some words over something or other and Sanders left him saying "he would fix him" and going down to the house he secured a gun and came back to where Rine was standing. Sanders raising the gun pointed at Rine but before he could fire, somebody reached over and pushed the barrel of the gun to one side. Rine then to protect shimself closed in on Sanders and while they were clinched the gun was discharged near Rine's face, but fortunately not injuring him. Sander's wife had reached thescene of the trouble by this time and hearing the gun go off she screamed at the top of her voice. Rine succeeded in wrenching the gun from Sanders and the latter then made his escape. Search was made for about an hour but no trace of Sanders could be found. He showed up at Meek's however on Sunday morning to do his regular work.

Officer Garis when seen on Sunday and asked whether or not Sanders had been arrested yet, said that Mr. Meek had requested the District Attorney not to arrest Sanders until Monday. The request was evidently complied with as this morning Sanders was still at work as if nothing had happened. District Attorney Singer when seen didn't seem to know whether or not any arrest would be made at all and there the matter stands and it is doubtful if anything is done to Sanders at all although it is a penitentiary offence at least that is what District Attorney Singer says. A nice state of affairs indeed.

Spiders and Silk Worms.

At one time, says the St. Louis Republic, it was seriously proposed to keep spiders for the silk they would produce. Reaumer, the scientistic of thermometrical fame, was appointed to make an investigation of the spider silk question. In his report he said that he had found that 2,304 silk worms would produce one pound of silk in a given time; and that he considered the work of 12 spiders only equal to one silkworm. At that rate, 27,648 spiders would do no more than 2,304 silkworms. Furthermore, it was found that there are 5,000 separate filaments in a single spider thread, and that the males are not workers. After summing up his investigation he found that 55,296 spiders would have to be kept in order to get as much silk as 2,304 silkworms would produce. That report was the death blow to the proposed spider silk industry.

JUMPED FROM A TRAIN.

Insane John E. Paulsgrove Fractured His Skull and Died.

Philadelphia, April 19.—While being brought to this city to undergo treatment in the Pennsylvania hospital for the insane John E. Paulsgrove, 34 years old, of Reading, jumped from the train near Manayunk this morning and received a fractured skull as a result of which he died in the Hahnemann hospital half an hour after his admission. In jumping from the train he nearly dragged his brother, Elwood Paulsgrove and his brother-in-law Frederick Prints, jr., off the car with him. The train was running at the rate of forty-five miles an hour. The deceased had been deranged for several months. He worked on Friday morning, but had a spell in the afternoon, and on the advice of his physician, Dr. Long, it was decided to place him in the Penn ylvania hospital for the insane in this city, and the necessary papers were made out.

This morning with his brother and brother-in-law as an escort the train from Reading was taken. When the train had reached a point about midway between Bridgeport and Manayunk, he suddenly jumped up from his seat and rushed for the front door of the car. He was caught by his two guardians before he reached the door, but with an insane fury he dragged them both out on the platform and plunged headformost off the step nearly dragging his two companions with him. The train was stopped and backed to where the wounded man lay. He was put on board and brought to the hospital but died without regaining consciousness.

Kidney Trouble Cured.

The importance of knowing just what to do when one is afflicted with kidney disease or troubles of a urinary nature, is best answered by the following letter which was recently published in the Poughkeepsie, N. Y., News-Press:

Millertown, Dutchess Co., N.Y.

"Dr. David Kennedy, Dear Sir:—For more than eighteen months I was so badly afflicted with kidney trouble I could scarcely walk a quarter of a mile without almost fainting. I did not gain any until I began to use Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. After using the first bottle I noticed a decided improvement which continued, and I know that saved my life, for I was in a miserable condition up to the time I began to take it—my friends thought I would never be better.

My sister also has been very sick with bladder trouble for over a year, so bad that quantities of blood would come from her. She suffered at times most frightful pain, and nothing seemed to help her until she began to use Dr. David Kennedy Favorite Remedy. She is now using her third bottle, and is like a different person.

—A "special officer" was at the scene of the shooting fray on Saturday night and was making himself very conspicuous with his brags as to what he was going to do. Ike Thomas and some other little boys soon discovered that he was a medicine man about three sheets in the wind and they had lots of fun guying his nibship until that individual left in disgust.

—The Palace Cigar Store owned by J. M. Cunningham changed hands on Saturday and is now being conducted by H. E. Jenkins Mgr. We wish the new proprietor every success possible.
